Keywords: linguistic typology, manuscript preparation

Ключевые слова: лингвистическая типология, подготовка текста

1. Introduction

All participants who made a contribution to the conference are invited to submit their papers. The maximal length of papers is 40000 characters for invited speakers, and 30000 characters for others (including trees, charts, references, etc). Publication languages are English and Russian. All papers should be formatted according to the guidelines below. Please proofread the paper carefully. Typographical and spelling errors are the author's responsibility. This style-sheet itself is formatted according to these guidelines and can be used as a concrete representation of the formatting requirements. If you have any questions, please contact TMP organizers at tmp.2017.moscow@gmail.com.

2. Submission of papers

All papers should be submitted electronically as an attachment by e-mail. We prefer submissions in Microsoft Word for Windows. Most of the instructions below are specific to that word processor. If you plan to use a different word processor, please ask the editors for additional formatting instructions. In addition to the electronic version of your paper please submit a hardcopy as a .pdf file.

Please send your submission to tmp.2017.moscow@gmail.com. The deadline is November 25, 2017.

The file name should be the first author's last name followed by whatever extension is required by the software.

3. Formatting specifications

The body of the paper should be written in 12 point Times font. If any other fonts are used for phonetic symbols, other special characters, please provide us with files containing these fonts.

In the body of the text, a letter, word, phrase, or sentence cited as an example should appear in italics, not quotation marks (the suffix -s, the word like, the construction was eaten). Cited forms in languages other than English should be immediately followed at their first occurrence by a gloss in single quotation marks, e.g. Latin ovis 'sheep'. The punctuation should follow the quote. Boldface is used to indicate emphasis; it can also be used in example sentences (to highlight a particular word or morpheme, for example).

Citations should be square-bracketed and include the author's name and the year (also a colon and page number if applicable), e.g. [Goldberg 1992; Sag and Wasow 1999: 132-133].

Do not include headers or footers either in your file or in your hard copy.

Do not include any page numbers.

4. Section headings

Section (=first level) headings appear in 12 point Times, boldface. Sections are numbered beginning with 1, not 0. The references section is not numbered. The section number is followed by a dot.

4.1. Heading level two

Second level headings are identical to main headings.

4.1.1. Heading level three

Third level headings are like second level headings, except that they are not bold, but italicized.

All headings should be marked "Keep with next" and "Keep lines together" in the Format:Paragraph parameters so that they will not be stranded at the bottom of a page.

5. Examples, tables, figures, and miscellaneous graphic images

Examples and translations should be in the same font size (12pt) as the text of the paper.

(1) a. marapai-thu rumpa-mi ithirr matyamirla-thu.
 woman-ERG grind-FUT seed-NOM grindstone-ERG
 ‘The woman will grind the seed with the grindstone.’

 b. marapai rumpa-yi-mi ithirr-ku matyamirla-thu.
 woman.NOM grind-AP-FUT seed-DAT grindstone-ERG
 ‘The woman will grind seed with the grindstone.’ [Blake 1994: 218]

Examples should not be indented. The main example number is parenthesized, the sub-letter is followed by a period. If you cite a source for an example, enclose the citation in square brackets.

Leave a blank line between multi-line examples. Boldface may be used to draw the reader’s attention to salient parts of an example. Skip one line before and after examples.

Tables, figures, trees, and other graphic images should be in their actual positions in the paper, not placed at the end or on separate pages. The label or caption for a figure or a table should be before the figure or table, left-justified. All data, tables, and figures must fit within the margins.

6. Footnote Settings

Notes must be footnotes, not endnotes. Footnotes are in 10-point type. Use Word’s default settings for footnote separators. Do not skip lines between footnotes if there are more than one on a page. Use a * (an asterisk) for your first footnote for acknowledgments.

7. Title, Author(s), and Abstract

All papers should start with a title (in 14pt, centered). The title should be boldfaced. After the title, skip a line, put your name in 12 pt, centered, italicized (but not in boldface), and then put the name of your institution (without your department) on the following line. The name of your institution should be 12pt, centered, italicized. If you are submitting a paper in Russian, please provide the English title (and the other way around).

The abstract should not exceed 100 words, and should not include any references. The abstract should be centered, in 10pt characters. Skip three lines before and two lines after the abstract. Restrict the abstract to a single paragraph. If you are submitting a paper in Russian, please enclose an abstract in English. If you submitting a paper in English, we would appreciate if you could provide an abstract in Russian. If you find this complicated, please let us know.

Please provide maximally 10 keywords in English, and, if possible, in Russian. Skip three lines after the keywords.

8. References

Leave two blank lines after the main text of the article and on the next line left-justify the heading References in boldface. This heading should be formatted like other first level headings, but should not be numbered. References should be given in alphabetical order and be fully justified.

See the end of this document for sample references; please follow them for capitalization, punctuation, etc. References are in 12-point type.

9. Contact Information

After the references section, please provide the author's information including the following: name, affiliation, academic degree, surface mail and e-mail addresses, phone number.
